

ISRS Presidential Recognition Award

Dr. Jack T. Holladay

The Presidential Recognition Award is a special award which honors Dr. Jack T. Holladay's dedication and contributions to refractive surgery and the ISRS.

Jack T. Holladay, MD, MSEE, FACS is a board certified ophthalmologist, who received a medical degree from the University of Texas and master's and bachelor's degrees in electrical engineering from Southern Methodist University.

Dr. Holladay is a clinical professor of ophthalmology at Baylor College of Medicine. He is the author of three books, hundreds of chapters and over 100 articles in peer-reviewed scientific journals. He serves on ten editorial boards and five medical advisory boards. He received the Distinguished Service Award from the Commissioner of the FDA for his service and holds 12 patents since 1977.

He received the Ridley Medal from the European Society of Cataract and Refractive Surgery, the Binkhorst Medal from the American Society of Cataract and Refractive Surgery, the Pearce Medal from the United Kingdom Society of Cataract and Refractive Surgery, the Lindstrom Medal from the Contact Lens Association of Ophthalmologists and the Honor Award, Senior Honor Award and the Life Time Achievement Award from the American Academy of Ophthalmology. He has also received the Barraquer Award, Casebeer Award, Founder's Award, Kritzinger Award and Lifetime Achievement Award from the International Society of Refractive Surgery. In 2009, he received the El-Maghraby International Award from the Middle East African Council of Ophthalmology. In 2011, Dr. Holladay received the Jan Worst Medal from the International Intraocular Implant Club and the Benedetto Strampelli Medal from the Society of Ophthalmology in Italy.

International Society of Refractive Surgery

A Partner of the American Academy of Ophthalmology